A NORTH CAROLINA ENGLISH COTTAGE GARDEN

Annabel Renwick, horticulturist, and Jan Little, director of education, Duke Gardens

This workshop will begin with an outline of English gardening strategies and design elements that can be successfully adapted to North Carolina gardens. Then you will have the opportunity to sketch out the basics of a plan for your landscape. Annabel, a graduate of The English Gardening School, and Jan, a landscape architect, bring their years of experience to help you sort through your choices and create a beautiful garden. Participants should bring a drawing of the site they want to develop; no site should be larger than 75 feet by 75 feet. Past participants have implemented the designs they created in this class and are enjoying the colorful results. Overall garden layout can be accomplished in this time; specific planting plans will not be completed.

URBAN FARM TOURS: Free for Duke Gardens Members

New!

Interest in food has never been greater.

Free!

The nutritional value of food, the supply chain and how food effects our health are topics of greater awareness today.

Join us to visit three gardens that are changing the way Durham eats. First we visit Duke Campus Farm, a one-acre working farm dedicated to catalyzing positive change in the ways we grow, eat and think about food. Then we go to Geer Street Learning Gardens of the Inter-Faith Food Shuttle, to see a garden that seeks to build community resilience and engage people in the powerful act of growing distributing and sharing local food. Lastly, we'll visit Durham Public Schools Hub Farm, a 30-acre farm where students, teachers and the community can grow, harvest, cook and eat healthful food through experiential learning strategies. Each of these tours will offer insight on beginning or extending your own garden and encourage you to think on a community-wide basis about food and health. Directions will be sent so we can meet on site. Sign up for one or all three tours.

THURSDAY, MARCH 22, 5:30-7 PM: DUKE CAMPUS FARM.

THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 5:30-7 PM: INTER-FAITH FOOD SHUTTLE GEER STREET LEARNING GARDEN.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4, 5:30-7 PM: DPS HUB FARM.

MEET ON SITE: DIRECTIONS WILL BE SENT.
