

FAMILY DISCUSSION GUIDE: FRIDAY

All of the activities that are a part of Gardening with Community provide ways to try hands-on gardening in a variety of contexts, as well as exploring how gardens can create healthy communities for plants, animals and people. We are providing this discussion guide for adults to help inspire conversations with your children and connect the activities to the weekly theme.

Today's activities included:

- Caring for Your Garden
- Plant Pigment Art
- Design Your Community Garden

Questions to prompt discussion:

- How can you care for a garden? What do your plants need to stay healthy?
- What plants did you use for pigments in your art? Did any of them work well? Were any of them surprising?
- Share your community garden design. What did you include, and why?
- Is there a place in your neighborhood where you could create the community garden you designed? Who can you talk to or work with?
